

Benjamin Franklin College

Dean's Notes – December 11, 2017

Dear Franklinites:

We're coming down to the moment of truth, of a particular (read: narrow) kind anyway. The exam period can stir self-doubt—even for seasoned seniors and certainly for newbies—about being able to hack it at Yale. Let me remind you that you belong here. You will be fine. You are made of tough mettle. Exams are a test of your knowledge and preparation, but not a test of your personal worth. It's also a finite period of time, meaning you can do this for another two weeks.

And, perhaps most importantly, you are not alone! Wellness Week continues in Ben Frank. Don't miss Head Charles flipping pancakes at Breakfast at Midnight (well, 11 pm) TONIGHT in the dining hall. Carb loading is wellness for the soul and spirit. Then you can tighten up those core muscles in Pilates on Wednesday at 1:00 pm. Sign-ups in the Dean's Office with Michelle – going fast! Never done Pilates? It's like yoga but more core, less "om," good stuff.

Best wishes during our final weeks together this term.

-Dean Hill

END-OF-TERM ACADEMIC RULES

The Reading Period. Term papers and term projects may be due as late as the last day of the final examination period. All other course assignments must be due by the end of the Reading Period. No final examination, including a take-home final examination, may be administered during the Reading Period (see <http://catalog.yale.edu/ycps/academic-regulations/reading-period-final-examination-period/>).

Date of Administering Final Examinations. A final examination must be given at the time and place appointed. If an instructor sets an alternative date for a final examination, that alternative date must fall within the final examination period; the examination must also be given at the regularly-scheduled time; two distinct and different examinations must be offered; and no student may be required to obtain special permission to take the alternative exam. (<http://catalog.yale.edu/ycps/academic-regulations/reading-period-final-examination-period/>)

Take-Home Final Examinations. These must be due in the Final Examination Period. See <http://catalog.yale.edu/ycps/academic-regulations/reading-period-final-examination-period/> for other stipulations concerning the due date of take-home final examinations.

Work Incomplete at the End of Term and Postponement of Final Examinations. Only Dean Hill has authority to give permission to a student to submit work in a course after the end of term (that is, after the last day of the Final Examination Period for term papers and term projects; after the Reading Period for all other course assignments). Instructors do not have the authority to give permission to extend beyond the end of the term the deadline for submission of course work (<http://catalog.yale.edu/ycps/academic-regulations/completion-of-course-work/>).

In cases of incapacitating illness, family emergency, NCAA competition, or religious observance, Dean Hill may authorize postponement of a final examination. For other special situations in which Dean Hill may authorize the postponement of a final examination, please see <http://catalog.yale.edu/ycps/academic-regulations/completion-of-course-work/> of the YCPS. Permission to postpone a final examination does not also carry authorization for a student to submit other work late in that course.

TedX Yale Student Speaker Competition

Have you ever dreamed of speaking on a global stage? Do you have a design for the future? An untold story just waiting to be heard? An idea worth spreading? We've heard from social entrepreneurs, microeconomists, museum curators, and environmental activists, and we want to hear from you.

The TEDxYale 2018 Flagship Conference will be held on March 3, 2018 and we invite students to join our growing roster of speakers. Apply, take the stage, and share your idea!

The application for the Student Speaker Competition closes at 11:59 PM on December 10, 2017.

Further details about the competition can be found in the application below.

It's that time again!

NSCI is accepting applications for new majors. Students who are interested in the NSCI major may submit their applications by the deadline Wednesday, December 13, 2017. Please be sure to review the requirements of the major before beginning your application. <http://neuroscience.yale.edu/requirements>. Please note: it is mandatory that the following courses be completed, or be on track to complete the semester you apply: BIOL 101-104, and Statistics: PSYC 200, S&DS 103, S&DS 105 or higher. There will also be an application process during the spring semester, 2018.

Application materials include a cover letter, transcript and completed worksheet (resume optional). Complete instructions can be found on our website at <http://neuroscience.yale.edu/requirements/apply>.

Please email all questions and applications to: Neuroscience.DUS@yale.edu.

New research course: Virus Discovery & Evolution, EEB175L

Not your typical lab—hybrid course between classwork and mentored research.

Who is this course for?

All students, especially freshmen and sophomores, who want an introduction to research or are curious about phages.
(*Course will be offered Spring 2018.)

Why are phages important?

Phages are viruses that infect bacteria. Many kill bacteria, and they are leveraged in industry, medicine, and evolutionary biology.

What will we do?

- Collect and search environmental samples for new phages.
- Characterize these new phages using techniques from microbiology and evolution.
- Design experiments and present findings, as well as collect and analyze results.

*Phage
includes...*

Making better
cheese

Institution for Social and Policy Studies

ADVANCING RESEARCH • SHAPING POLICY • DEVELOPING LEADERS

The Institution for Social and Policy Studies at Yale (ISPS) is pleased to announce that applications are open for the Director's Fellows program. The fellowship is open to Yale sophomores and juniors who are committed to working in U.S. domestic politics and policymaking. Selected Fellows will join ISPS as members of the Domestic Policy Group starting in January 2018, and over the course of one calendar year, will receive sophisticated policy training from ISPS faculty and affiliates, integrate into ISPS research activities, and test their development through real world application and feedback.

ISPS Director's Fellows will have the opportunity to attend biweekly workshops, some featuring prominent Yale faculty and guests working on policy-relevant issues and others providing training in skills such as op-ed and policy memo writing, media appearances, and blogging.

The Fellowship is open to Yale College sophomores and juniors and can be completed online. To apply, please visit our webpage and click on "Application Form" at the bottom of page.

Deadline for applying is December 20, 2017 at 11:59pm. Accepted fellows will be notified mid-January 2018.
